THE TILTON-BEECHER CASE.

NEW YORK, April 15—In the Beecher trial after recess the cross-examination of Beecher was continued and witness testified that after securing the retraction from Mrs Tilton he did not show it to anyone before delivering to Moulton nor did he talk to any one in regard to it Fullerton read from witness testimony on direct examination his account of the so-called pistol scene at the time Moulton secured the retraction which as witness said Moulton in taking off his overcoat exposed the hilt of his pistol which he afterwards took out of his pocket and laid on the bureau without saying a word In answer to Fullerton's questions witness stated that he did not think Moulton showed his pistol with a view of intimidating him Fullerton then read witness' statement before the investigating committee of the same scene when he said, speaking of Moulton "He made no verbal threats but he opened his overcoat and with some emphatic remark showed a pistol which afterwards he took out and laid on the bureau and I gave the paper to him" Witness was asked if in making this statement he did not intend to carry the inference that the pistol was used for the purpose of intimidation He replied that he could not recollect that he did He did not remember that at the time he supposed such inference would be drawn from the statement As near as he could remember the pistol was not shown or seen until after he (witness) had agreed to give up the paper and had got it from the bureau drawer to hand Moulton though he would not be certain. There was an arrangement between him and Moulton for an interview on Sunday but who suggested or for what purpose it was held he could not recollect He couldn't recollect whether any hour was fixed for the interview, only that it was in the afternoon on Sunday It was very likely it was agreed between him and Moulton that he should call that afternoon and report how Tilton took the return of the retraction but he had no remembrance of it whatever. Witness here described the interview of the 1st of January 1871 substantially as given on direct examination Witness was asked "Well you felt grieved that day at something, you had done to Tilton" Answer—I should think I did He did not so much as explain this to Moulton he poured it over him. As he became free to speak he poured out his feelings to him He was induced to advise Bowen against Tilton's remaining on the Brooklyn Union for the reason that he was tainted in his moral habits. He advised him in the light of his own experience and observations of Tilton's character that is in the light of his peculiarity not of doctrinal statements or socialistic statements, but in the light of his experience of him as a manager and especially as a co-operative worker in a party or for a cause. Witness was asked if Moulton on the first of January convinced him that Tilton was a fit person to conduct the Brooklyn Union notwithstanding witness' observation and experience of him He replied he convinced him so far as that the reasons were moral and he doubted absolutely the truth of the Bessie Turner story Moulton vindicated Tilton from the charge of immorality Witness was asked if on this occasion January 1st, he said anything to Moulton in regard to his (witness) grievance namely that the accusation was false as he claimed it was that Tilton brought against you of making improper advances to his wife He replied that he denied it. He didn't know why he didn't so state on his direct examination He couldn't recollect in what connection he denied this charge nor exactly how the subject came up

The letter of apology was then taken up and witness was asked if Moulton wrote in his own writing the words "In trust with F D Moulton," at the head of the letter Witness knew nothing about it It was not written at his request He didn't know whether he thought anything about its keeping in trust at the time The reason he didn't examine the paper to see whether Moulton had done well what he had undertaken to do, was that he relied upon him entirely He thought him a man of discretion and that he would make a fair report of his feelings with such specifications as seemed to him proper He was not aware of the language in which Moulton clothed it was not aware of the fact that it was put in the form of a letter beginning "My dear friend Moulton"

Question—Did you say anything like this "I ask through you Theodore Tilton's forgiveness and I humble myself before him as I do before my God" Answer—I did not use that expression sir.

Q—Did you use any expression of that character? A—I used generally a statement of this kind that I had for my error and wrong in the matter humbled myself before God and I shouldn't be ashamed to humble myself before Tilton

Q You had discovered your wrong then before Moulton came there on that day had you? A There had been in—

Q Had you had you? A Not in its full extent

Q Had you discovered it? A I had suspected a part

Q Well you say you had humbled yourself before God in consequence of the wrong you had done? A Yes sir I had. I had seen enough of it to be very humble about it

Q When had you made the discovery A In conversation with Moulton on the night on which I went to Moulton's house and in a subsequent conversation on some parts of it on the night of the 31st and in the [illegible] he didn't recollect that he thought at the time of the injury done him by Tilton in charging him with improper conduct or that he brought this into connection with the injury he had done Tilton through Bowen

Witness was asked if Tilton had a right to charge him with making improper advances to his wife He replied he had if he had evidence of it or thought he had Fullerton then asked if at the time the letter of contrition was written the 1st of January he had made up his mind that Tilton made this charge in good faith

Witness attempted to explain but Fullerton insisted upon a direct answer of yes or no Finally witness admitted that about the close of the interview with Moulton that day he had made up his mind that Tilton made the charge of improper solicitation or improper advances in good faith That he had done so on the strength of his wife's written statements to him He believed that the statement was obtained from her when she was weak and by persistent inquiry He certainly thought she had told her husband a falsehood about it and he remained in that opinion all New Years day while this paper was being prepared Witness was asked why when he came to the conclusion that Tilton was making the charge in good faith and Mrs Tilton had told him a falsehood he did not hasten to vindicate himself to Tilton by telling him it was not true He replied he thought he was doing it through Moulton in that interview Fullerton then read the letter of contrition slowly through and asked witness to point out to him any expression intended to convince Tilton that his charges against witness were wrong.

Witness said the conclusion of the reading that document was not his The sentiments in the letter were part of his conversation but he did not select the sentences that Moulton was to report He considered the charges made by Tilton of improper advances or solicitation as the gravest charge against him but he didn't deny it [illegible] Tilton that this charge was untrue He sent no message whatever to Tilton with regard to the charges made against himself He expected Moulton to make such a report of his conversation to Tilton as he thought best He did not say he would have been a better man in my circumstances than I have been but he said something which he could well understand might have been condensed into that expression He used language conveying that sentiment The expression "I can ask nothing except that he will remember all the other hearts that would ache" he did not use He said something akin to it. The expression "I will not plead for myself I even wish that I were dead" he didn't use, nor did it represent any sentiment he expressed He spoke of others living and suffering. He didn't say he would die before any one but himself should be inculpated but he did something in the neighborhood The [illegible] All his thought [illegible] referring to his friends, toward the people [illegible] living the [illegible] ing with folded hands reminded him of something he said The expression "She is guiltless sinned against bearing the transgression of another" he did not use He said "Her friends [illegible]" When the paper was put into his hands he didn't read it nor was it read to him The reason he did not read it or have it read was because he [illegible] about it He gave it to Moulton directly in relating the interview to Tilton He (witness) signed it but not to attest the truth of the statement but to the fact that he had given it in trust to Moulton He regarded the paper as Moulton's memorandum of this He didn't sign the paper as a certificate but simply as a memorandum to recall to Moulton's mind the salient points of the conversation He wanted to use it for the benefit of both of them

Fullerton again asked saying he would give him an opportunity to explain if he wished or could why he did not on the occasion of this interview with Moulton, send to Tilton a denial of the charge of making improper advances to his wife or to point out or tell anything he did for the purpose of vindicating himself with Tilton against the charge.

Witness replied "I didn't send one word that I remember to Tilton If you will let me go on—"

Fullerton—That is not an answer to my question

Witness—That is sufficient

Fullerton then referred to Moulton's first statement before the committee the short one and asked Beecher if it was read to him He replied affirmatively and said he made no objection to it. Witness' attention was called to the clause in the statement referring to the language of the so called letter of contrition but he could not recollect whether it was read to him or not He was then questioned at length as to the first time he heard of the contents of this letter of contrition and said he first heard about it from Tracy in December 1872 he gave him a draft of it but not the details. Afterwards he heard the substance of it from Kinsella in June 1873. They did not state what form the paper was in Fullerton then read Beecher's letter to Moulton dated January 3 1873 in which he refers to "my letter to Tilton through you" and asked witness why he called it a letter when he did not know its form He explained that he used the first title that came to his mind A long series of questions or rather same question was repeatedly asked witness as to how he got the information that enabled him to say that the document in question the letter of contrition was a letter and finally he answered that he couldn't tell He was then questioned with regard to a conversation with John Russell Young, of the Tribune in the summer of 1874 when Young said he had seen the letter of contrition and was asked whether he didn't tell Young he didn't want to see the letter as he wished to be able to say on the trial that he had never seen it He denied having said anything of the kind to Young or mentioned the trial to him He didn't remember disclaiming the authenticity of the letter to Young, Tracy or Claflin who had spoken to him about it

Beecher's first statement before the committee was then taken up but as it was a long document, the court adjourned

NEW YORK April 16

Owing to the ill health of Fullerton and his apprehension that to proceed to-day with the scandal case would precipitate another attack of vertigo the further cross-examination of Beecher was postponed until Monday until which time the court adjourned The crowd struggling for admittance to the court room was enormous and the disappointment great

Bessie Turner was in the court room and received from Beecher a warm shake of the hand

THE IMPRISONMENT OF STOREY

The Chicago Inter Ocean thus comments on the imprisonment of Wilbur F Storey editor of the Times for constructive contempt of court in criticising the grand jury and district attorney

We are opposed to the imprisonment of any citizen without due process of law and we do not regard the summary proceeding of the committal to jail for contempt of any individual as due process of law for the right if it exists at all goes to the extent of confinement for life Judge Williams in imprisoning Mr Storey for ten days, asserted his right to confine the prisoner during the remainder of his life The American people will not consent to hold their liberty at the will of any judge of any court Judge Williams in the course of his opinion admits that he read the offensive articles in the Times with a feeling of intense indignation but says that the feeling has entirely passed away He then defends and eulogizes the State's attorney and proceeds to declare that no city in the United States has been the scene of such events as have been transpiring in Chicago for the past few weeks" Judge Williams forgets that recently in New York three judges were persistently attacked and pursued to impeachment by the journals of that city, and that one of them died of shame and remorse In the case of Storey however it does not appear that the administration of justice has been impeded one iota But the people will not allow judges to assume the exercise of prerogatives dangerous to the freedom of speech and liberty of the citizen They will not permit the doctrine of constructive contempts as illustrated in the Storey case to become the law of the land The imprisonment of the editor of the Times without due process of law upon the employment of an unknown power by the judge of the criminal court is a matter whose interest reaches far beyond the individuals who enact the chief part in this performance

CLOCK MAKING IN THE BLACK FOREST

The manufacture of clocks in the Black Forest says Galignani is chiefly carried on at Dittishausen, Eisenach, Furtwangen St Georges Lenz Kirch Newstadt Triberg, Willingen and Rohrenbach It is only since the last thirty five years that the small private makers have given place to the large work shops now established The cases wheels, and other essential parts of the clocks and watches are made separately; the work is thus divided among various branches and the different pieces are sent to the factories where they are put together and the complete article is tried and regulated An idea of the importance of that trade may be formed from the fact that in 1871 there were in the Black Forest 1 420 firms engaged in it, employing 7,025 men besides women and children, in all about 13 000 persons The number of articles produced was 1 800 000 among which were 100 000 of the first class the whole representing a value of 10 000 000 florins (2 francs 15 centimes each) The highest branch of that industry is the manufacture of clocks with automatic figures or with music the largest of these latter imitate a complete orchestra. This work is not divided like the others the same artists making all the mechanism with the exception of the metallic tubes About 500 men are engaged in that particular occupation

A CORNER IN SMOKE

A correspondent of the Pittsburgh Leader from Washington city thus tells of a lively contest among the tobacconists of that place

Last Saturday opposition broke out in the tobacco trade and was carried to the highest pitch of excitement A new dealer opened out and commenced business by putting down prices Then the old dealers got together and dropped still lower This was followed by retaliation from the originator of the decline and tobacco got another fall and another from the old dealers till finally one dealer announced twelve tobies for five cents which was met by a counterblast from the opposition of "A slop bucket full of tobies for a dime" and it seemed for a while that we should soon have our smoking for the mere asking for it We were absolutely looking for the dealers to start men out with trays full of fine cut navy and natural leaf begging everybody to take a chew while pretty waiter girls were expected to be sent around town with baskets full of cigars and boxes of wax tapers soliciting the generous and noble public to "try a fresh one" but alas! Hopes were crushed and the opposition quickled in a very inglorious manner One of the dealers sent boys around and bought up all those twelve for five cents and "slop buckets full for a dime" and the consequences was prices went up to the old rates and the tobacco war was ended Tobies cost as much here now as anywhere

Mr D B Smith who lives in Minto's Pass on headwaters of the Santiam informs the Statesman that during the past winter the very coldest weather, as indicated by the thermometer at his house, was 6° below zero and at no time was there sufficient snow to close a road over that pass, had there been one

The Wool Product and Prices at Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES April 15 —Wool is beginning to come in in considerable quantities Receipts at the depot registered since Monday are something over 110 bales The feeling among wool purchasers is not favorable to strong rates There is a disinclination on the part of producers to sell at low figures, and the result will probably be the holding of a good portion of the spring clip for a higher market The quality of the clip so far is very fair but it will probably deteriorate and become burry as the grass dries off

THE PALOUSE COUNTRY.

COLFAX W T April 5, 1875

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

After a night spent in vain dreams of approaching spring, through the silent hours of which one could fully appreciate the real worth of several pairs of blankets I proceed to write you

The sensations created by one's looking out upon a mantle of new fallen snow after the enjoyment of a few beautiful spring days are anything but pleasant especially to those whose future prospects have been in some degree blighted by the effects of the past severe winter All day long the air has been filled with snow driven by a strong wind directly from Greenland and still continues with unabated fury

For the past few days the Palouse river has been running very high making the building of a ferry boat at this place a necessity in order to make a connection between East and West Colfax which sections of said city have heretofore been connected by a foot bridge which was washed away by the current At the time of this writing the torrent has spent itself and has fallen enough to enable teams to ford the stream as usual

Nothing daunted by the reverses occasioned by the past severe siege farmers are pursuing their various avocations as if nothing unusual had happened while others (disgusted with the country) are engaged in collecting together their earthly possessions preparatory to starting they know not whither The prospects for a lively season are at present quite flattering Beach & Co's steam sawmill is now completed and will commence operations in a few days Yours &c,

SAN JUAN AND THE BLACK HILLS

[From Forney's Press]

With the spring the minds of men lightly turn to thoughts of Indes. All winter the miners [illegible] for the quest of gold and silver—the nineteenth century Argonauts—have been quietly organizing equipping and maturing their plans of campaign and lines of operation To day they only wait for the melting of the snows and the falling of floods to take up their march and in the warm and sheltered valleys of the Rocky mountains vernal things are already beginning

This spring two great districts will divide the attention of the gold hunters—the San Juan country at the headwaters of the Rio Grande and the Black Hills of Wyoming, at whose forbidding gate Sheridan stands with double edged sword The Black Hills district is undergoing the incipient stage of the gold fever in the San Juan district the fever is at its height, and the yield of this year will probably be something immense An item of special correspondence from Del Norte the golden gate of the San Juan valley printed to day shows that the tide of action there has already set in Recent telegrams demonstrate that the only thing which keeps back the invasion of the Black Hills by the nomadic forces of the frontier is the presence of United States troops

Taking into consideration the determined stand of the Government the fierce hostility of the Indians who will bloodily defend their reservation and the want of railway communication we may safely predict that the absolute yield of the Black Hills will be little or nothing this year For two years at least yet the section must be given up merely to prospectors before it can be determined whether it is in reality a first class mining section This fact, though, will not hold back the advance of the adventure-loving prospectors whose thirst for discovery is generally in exact ratio to the danger

Statisticians however may at once be ready to count on the product of the San Juan country as an appreciable addition to the mineral yield of the nation This section is now in its fourth year of development The prospectors have had their day and demonstrated a wealth of precious resources the pioneers have had their bloody regime and cleared out the Indians the railway builders have done their work and thrown out iron antennæ within a hundred miles of the district and the miners have already entered in force with improved machinery and open communication behind them in the way of fairly built wagon roads from the railway termini at Pueblo and Canyon City to the mines and as soon as the picks and drills get fairly to work return trains will begin to come in loaded for the mint and smelting works

These two great regions which will divide the aggressive enterprise of the mining population of the West and the attention of the readers and financiers of the East are about equidistant from St Louis San Juan however, is substantially reached by railway, while the Black Hills lie some four or five hundred miles beyond Cheyenne the nearest railway station over inhospitable and hostile districts While they will perhaps share pretty equal in the attention of the frontier, the one will attract the adventurous and thoughtless pioneers the other the older and experienced miners, who go not after discovery but after yield

Both districts have some points of physical resemblance, for both are on that same stretch of great mountain foothill best known at present as the continental plateau—the Black Hills lying in North Wyoming the San Juan in South Colorado

We have given this preliminary view of the gold and silver situation of this year because this season promises in many respects to be a remarkable one in interest and product and if the yield in the San Juan districts equals the promise of the prospectors and the United States scientific exploring parties it must appreciably and at once affect the question of our national finances and currency

PACIFIC MAIL MATTERS

THE REPORTED RESIGNATION OF MR. COX UNFOUNDED—THE CARPENTERS' DEPARTMENT—THE TROUBLE WITH THE PANAMA RAILROAD COMPANY

[From the S F Chronicle]

A report which had gained some circulation that Jennings S. Cox agent of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company had resigned his position proves on inquiry to be entirely unfounded Mr Cox says that he has not resigned nor does he intend to do so What the new management of the company may decide upon he declares himself unable to say If they shall see fit to supplant him on the principle that "to the victors belong the spoils" he will accept the situation gracefully assisting his successor to all the information he has acquired by hard experience, so that the new man may not seem to be pitchforked into the place as he himself was There are as yet however, no intimations in regard to further change in the local affairs The placing of the carpenters department at the dock in charge of the engineer was simply done under a general direction from head quarters in New York to economize, accompanied with a suggestion that a consolidation of those two departments was advisable

Mr Cox knows nothing personally of the trouble between the steamship company and the Panama Railroad but thinks it may have been caused—if it really exists—by the former company's raising their rates, which would naturally have the effect of driving more freight overland The Panama Railroad Company is wealthy and has been paying steadily a dividend of twenty per cent on $5 000 000 capital If they see fit to start another steamship line they can, perhaps command enough capital in New York to carry out such a project

The rumor that there was a discrepancy in the accounts of the Hongkong and San Francisco agencies Mr Cox thinks was started for effect Later advices at any rate have corrected the report and substituted Panama for San Francisco showing that this agency is not the objective point of investigation

NATIVE CRUELTY IN INDIA

A Baroda correspondent of the Bombay Gazette furnishes the following remarkable, and if true atrocious particulars of a case of cruelty which he says, has created a profound sensation as well it might It appears says this authority that one of Mulhar Rao's courtiers who was in great favor with his Highness was looked upon with jealousy by some of his fellow courtiers So to get him into trouble with the Maharajah they reported to his Highness that the favorite had been casting amorous glances at the Queen The poor man was then seized under—as I hear it will be satisfactorily proved—the orders of the Maharajah and cast into prison Special fetters and manacles were forged for him I have seen them A great iron bar nearly as thick as your wrist and about eighteen inches long, with thick heavy rings fitting on it for the hands to go in to secure his arms These things alone weighed twenty two pounds An iron ring of great weight was put around his neck and a chain was I believe attached to it Huge iron bars with rings attached all together weighing thirty five pounds were fastened to his legs so that it must have been impossible for the poor fellow even to walk a yard He could neither stand, sit nor lie down I am told the weight of the iron attached to his hands must have been almost always on his chest and the iron around his neck must have bent his body down so that his sufferings must have been terrible, But they discovered a way of adding to them For about sixteen days they fed him on chutney made of chillies, and gave him salt water to drink At the end of this time he died Every one who has seen these fetters feels sick at the very thought of what this poor wretch must have suffered All this time there was no charge made against him, and there is no reason to suppose that any notice would ever have been taken of the circumstance if it had not been for the inquiry which has been ordered to be held"

LETTER FROM ASTORIA—NO 1

ASTORIA GOING AHEAD—THE NEW FISHERY—THE PILOT COMMISSIONERS GO TO SEA—ONE MORE FAIR DAY

ASTORIA April 13, 1875

The change in the atmosphere during the last few days is a delightful experience The air is as pure soft and fragrant as any spring weather ever enjoyed at Astoria Every one feels as if they had entered on a new existence The scenery connected with the Columbia river the bay the bar and the ocean seem inspired with a fresh life and beauty The effects on the body and mind of the people are renewed energies for the battle of life and cheerful expectations of future success

ASTORIA

After many years of slow growth and comparative torpidity has entered on a career of enterprise energy and progress that is full of hope and that indicates steady, permanent prosperity During the last year fifty new houses have been erected in the old and new towns at an average cost of $700 each nine new business establishments have been built, three new general stores have been opened, carpenters' blacksmiths' boot and shoe shops have increased three times what they were twelve months since. Business has more than doubled in amount of sales Real estate has advanced an average of a hundred per cent, vacant lots have sold rapidly, the demand is growing and the price is advancing There is not a vacant house in the old or new towns and there is a legitimate demand for twenty new houses at the present time There has been at least $75,000 spent last year in building new residences, stores, warehouses and general improvements The stores are large and well stocked with goods. The private residences are large and elegant, the numerous cottages are neat and comfortable

A. BOOTH & CO'S FISHERY,

On the eve of completion is one of the marked features of the progress of Astoria during the past year and another guarantee of its future growth and prosperity Mr Booth is distinguished as one of the great oyster packers of Baltimore for the last fifteen years. Mr John Adair Jr, of Astoria is the managing partner he and his brother, Mr S D Adair, are the company

The buildings are located at upper Astoria, adjoining the city limits, half a mile from the farmers warehouse The main warehouse is 200 feet by 40 the boiling or cooking room is 40 feet by 120 the finishing room is 40 feet by 80 The building is so arranged that the fish from the time they are landed from the boats on the wharf until they are cut up, canned, cooked finished cased and placed in the general warehouse for shipment that there is no unnecessary handling or waste of men and time

The buildings extend to the main channel of the river, where the water is 20 feet at low tide and from 25 to 30 feet at high water so that the largest vessels that sail the Pacific can come to the wharf at the main warehouse to load and unload.

The fish will be cooked by steam, using 14 kettles, two boilers and an engine The same power will be used to drive some of the machinery in the manufacture of cans. This department will be managed at a fourth of the cost of the usual method of cooking

Twenty five boats and nets will be employed in fishing Forty men are employed at present and 200 will be at work in the various departments in ten days An ample supply of water is provided with a pressure of forty feet, to meet any emergency in the event of fire. Twenty five men have been employed making cans for the last three weeks at the rate of 10 000 a day

Fishing, curing and the establishment will be in full operation in ten days. The location of the fishery is in the center of where the choice Chinook salmon are taken in their primest condition where they play for three weeks before starting on the run up the Columbia river proper and where they can be landed on the fishery wharf, 30 minutes after taken and where the nets can be drifted up with the tide and down with the return tide

Among the vitally important facts in calculating on the reasonable certainty of the success of this fishery is, that the Company have

AMPLE CAPITAL

To work the establishment to the greatest possible advantage, and ample facilities for placing their fish on the markets of the world without paying a heavy interest for borrowed money and exorbitant commissions for sales and charges for storage and purchases The difference between success and failure in business in general is cost of capital to run the establishment to the greatest advantage and the credit system that brings either a slow or speedy consumption on the producer To owe no man anything but good deeds is as good in business life as in moral and Christian conduct

In planning and building this fishery it is so constructed for strength and convenience as to be available for storing wheat when the fishing season is over at the end of July There are 480 feet by 40 of warehouse accommodation for this purpose that will hold 200,000 bushels which will add to the facilities of and attractions of Astoria as a desirable place for landing large vessels. A visit to this fishery will amply repay all who are interested in the trade, or who take any interest in the development prosperity and progress of the industries of the State, Mr John Adair, Jr the business manager, is the right man in the right place The other improvements and industries at Astoria, and on the Columbia will be noticed in due time.

THE PILOT COMMISSIONERS,

Consisting of Messrs A. Van Dusen, D K Warren and Wm Wadhams, met at Astoria to day to see the working of the towboat Astoria and examine into the efficiency of the pilot system. At 8 o'clock Capt. A. T Wass the experienced commander of the tug had the steam up and ready for a trip on the bay and to the bar In due time the commissioners were on board with Capt Flavel the owner and a few invited guests Among the latter number were the Hon W D Hare, Gen Bell Rev Mr Post and lady Mr Ireland editor of the Astorian, Capt Kipp and Capt. Johnson The day was delightful, the bay was beautiful the bar had a considerable swell but was at the same time comparatively smooth The tug called at Fort Stevens, crossed the bar several miles, returned and called at Cape Disappointment. The parties on board visited the lighthouse Post Canby, and received the most polite attentions from Major Smith and Lieut Jones, of the post and Mr Munson and Mr Young of the lighthouse At 3 o'clock the party left for Astoria having spent a day of unusual pleasure. The commissioners so far as I can learn, are well pleased with the tugboat that Capt Flavel is doing his best to meet the wants of masters of vessels as to towing and pilotage, and that whatever drawbacks may have occurred in the past will be rectified in the future Mr Thomas Doig was appointed an additional bar pilot at the meeting of the commissioners in the evening

Taking into consideration that Mr. Brower has never set a type in his life before, the feat was a remarkable one

Squire Johnson, of Salem, has a great butter producing cow She had a calf about the middle of February 1873 From that date she continued to give milk for 24 consecutive months and averaged about one pound of butter per day, or about 700 pounds during the two years, besides furnishing plenty of milk for family use during that time This valuable cow had a calf the 11th of last March, and from the 29th ult. until the 14th of April she yielded 34 pounds of butter, a little more than two pounds per day. This cow was fed during the time on cut hay and bran

The Enterprise says A large panther has been intruding his unwelcome presence in the vicinity of Capt. Hedge's farm, about a mile from Oregon City, and other places close by He has got away with several sheep, and on last Saturday quite a force started out to capture the chap, but the hunt was unsuccessful He makes himself quite free and we are informed that he kept the family occupying Mr Milne's place close in the house all day he having taken up a position in front of the gate to the disgust and the disapproval of the occupants. He'll fool 'round until he gets hurt, probably.

The Daily Oregonian.

FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 16, 1875.

AN ATTEMPT WHICH, FORTUNATELY, DID NOT SUCCEED.

Just as the late session of Congress was about to expire, Oregon's junior Senator distinguished himself by an attempt to smuggle through, in the form of an amendment to the Sundry Civil Service Appropriation Bill, a law to set at liberty certain one or more persons then under arrest and awaiting trial for crimes alleged to have been committed in Alaska. It is well known that Senator Hipple procured the appointment of Mr John A. Carr as collector or deputy collector of customs at Fort Wrangel, Alaska, and before that individual had been in Alaska long there were grave complaints of malfeasance in his office: and that finally he was arrested and brought to Portland for trial on several grave charges, some of them directly connected with his official position; and some in connection with the laws relating to the introduction of spirituous liquors into that territory. The subject of permitting or excluding the introduction of spirits into Alaska having been placed in the hands of the military, and Mr. Carr's alleged offense having been the violation of regulations made under that law, it was attempted by Hipple to tack on to the appropriation bill above mentioned an amendment repealing the law under which Carr was arrested, which, under a rule of criminal law familiar to all lawyers, would, if it had passed, have had the effect to bar all prosecution for crimes committed against the law while it was in force. Sargent, of California, who trains in the same band, was intrusted with the introduction of the amendment, as a device to avoid arousing suspicion that the real object was to get Hipple's appointee off without a trial; but when, to the disappointment of the promoters of the game, some sharp inquiries were directed at an amendment so foreign to the subject matter of the bill, and when Edmunds, of Vermont, always vigilant and seldom wrong, led a vigorous assault on the amendment, Sargent was not prepared for the emergency, and Hipple was forced to come to the front and admit the paternity of the job by becoming its special champion. The failure of the iniquitous attempt is owing, probably, more to the fact of our Senator's having been previously caught trying to deceive the Senate in respect to a certain railway bill, than to anything else. Having come to be regarded in the Senate as a suspicious character, he is narrowly watched, and his championship is dangerous to any measure in which the smallest point can be found to base an objection upon.

We do not wish to be understood as asserting the guilt of Carr. Whatever may be our opinion on that subject, we would not willingly influence the public mind one way or another in advance of the trial. But it is never too early to condemn and denounce such an attempt to shield him from a judicial investigation as that made by his patron in the Senate. Such conduct by one entrusted with the high functions of a Senator of the United States may not answer the legal definition of official corruption, but it can not be too strongly reprehended, since it is calculated and intended to thwart the ends of justice, render nugatory all the sanctions of the law, and offer exemption from punishment for crime as a reward for personal services in politics.

OVERLAND FREIGHTS.

It is but a short time since the Pacific Mail Steamship Company fell into the hands of the overland railway owners, destroying competition between the lines of transportation; and yet there have already been two turns of the screws, each time putting up the freight tariff largely. In order that the reader may see at a glance the extent to which the country is taxed to pay the cost of buying off the opposition, we here present the tariffs by rail across the continent before the purchase of the Pacific Mail, and after the last turn of the screws, respectively:

Rates per 100 pounds:

	1st Class.	2d.	3d.	4th.	Cl A	B	C	D
Old	$3 25	$2 00	$1 70	$1 50	$1 70	$1 60	$1 50	$1 40
New	6 00	5 00	4 00	3 00	2 50	2 00	1 75	1 50

That is what it costs the people to sustain monopoly. Because the expense of building a second railway across the continent is too great for any combination of the people to meet, the present line of road can put its rates up to the very last figure that will not absolutely suspend trade, and the people must stand it. Have the people no right to complain?

A NICE CASE TO COMMENCE ON.

The editor of the ring organ is favored with a conveniently treacherous memory on other matters as well as on the railway defalcations. He says we did not respond when he asked us to point out some person who had never been in the city jail, and yet for whose board in jail a charge had been made against the city. He has forgotten the facts in an amazingly short time. We promptly cited him to a case, but as one of the parties involved was a Federal officer and member of the ring, the Bulletin replied he was afraid it would insult that individual to press an investigation, and desired us to shift the matter to some other person. We prefer to have the investigation begin with Daniel. We have specified that particular case, and it is an excellent one to commence with.

THE PER CENT. GAINED BY HOME MANUFACTURES.

About two years ago a manufacturer from San Francisco was passing the falls at Oregon City. Being asked what he thought of its power and its position, he replied: "You can make money by manufacturing here when we cannot run a spindle in California." Taking out a card, he marked $40 per day which the Mission mills pay for power alone—viz: $30 for coal and $10 for fireman and engineer. He then marked their interest on $80,000 for real estate. Against these items he marked not more than $10 per day for power at Oregon City, and the interest on $20,000 for the equivalent real estate. At these rates the saving in power is $9,000 per year, and in interest $6,000.

"Your laborers," he said, "can be hired and supported as cheap or cheaper than in San Francisco. Your home wool can be bought at lower rates, and your foreign wool imported at only a little higher freights. Your transportation to outside markets will cost a little more, but your home demands will be met at less cost. You have plainly the advantage of us, and when in close competition we can not run a spindle, while you can run your looms and make money."

"Why do not our wealthy merchants invest in such enterprises and increase their business, if the profit is so sure?" He replied: "If they would put half the money that they invest in fine houses and stores, they would soon make the money to build them, and extend business activity among all the people, and give strength, growth and permanence to the towns and cities."

"Will money seek this investment?" "Undoubtedly at some time, but it will pay now. I know what I say. The Pacific coast has the best manufacturing facilities in America. We have the climate, the productive power of food, and of the raw materials, and ready access to the regions that supply material and take our products, and we can secure the labor that will compete with the labor of Europe.

"In twenty years, and possibly in fifteen, you will see our woolen fabrics laid down in the markets of England cheaper than their own. I have studied this question, and I know what changes are in operation." Some other remarks of the same tenor were made as the car ride gave opportunity.

Subsequent inquiries proved that the factory at Oregon City is run at a cost for power of about $2 per day of twelve or of twenty-four hours' length, and it uses only a part of its two hundred horse power, allowing, perhaps, more than half to run to waste. The original cost of its ground and water power was only about $10,000.

To show that prices have not changed much, a gentleman offers to sell three lots, 66x100 feet each, with a seventy horse water power, warranted to be perpetual; the race is blasted out ready for the wheel. The price last named was $9,000. Or, being a mechanic, and also somewhat acquainted with manufacturing, he seeks a partner with capital to erect a building and put in machinery for some kind of fabrics or implements.

The woolen mills now in operation increase their business annually, and find markets for all the goods they make. A difficulty is felt in changing from one fabric to another, as the market demands. A mill that makes one class of goods alone extends its market most widely at the best profits. Five factories will do better in a place than one.

But it is objected that this factory has paid no dividends. Yet it has been burned once and rebuilt on a larger scale, putting a large per cent. into improvements and perhaps accumulating a working capital. Their accounts are, of course, open only to the company, yet their prosperity is patent to every observer.

But it is objected that our population is too small for a home market, and we cannot expect to compete with the older States whose manufactories have long been in operation with every improvement; with abundant skilled labor at command; with goods that have won a first-class reputation, and with all the facilities of access to all parts of the country and of the world. If that argument had been a good one, New England was unwise to attempt manufacturing while Old England was eager and ready to supply the markets of the world. But in the competition of many fabrics New England goes into the same outside marts as Old England. American manufactures, of various kinds, surpass those of Europe. Our opportunity to use the latest improvements in machinery equals theirs, and gives us the same chances to supply cheaper and better goods.

Oregon manufacturers can buy the latest improved machinery, and start with the foremost mills of the East. But a fact is better proof than a theory. Some Oregon goods, as blankets from Salem and Oregon City, do compete in San Francisco, Chicago, New York with those made in the East. Orders have come for them and for cassimeres, if report is true. Several articles of our home manufacture have now a deserved fame and created a demand. But admit that it is possible to put our manufactures on other markets, you object that some of our mills stop, and some shops stand with closed doors, showing that the cost price has been above the selling price.

Grant the objection, in some cases, the continued operation of other mills and shops, show defective management or bad location; or some accidental loss in those that have ceased work. A commission merchant or a banker may not know how to manufacture wagons or blankets with success, but this does not prove that it cannot be done by men who understand the business. Every man to his trade, is the rule of efficient business.

The thing to do is to set the experienced and skillful at work, with such self-interest in the enterprise that they will strive for success. They will test the possibility of competition. The fact that this very thing has been done in Oregon, proves that it can be done on a larger scale, and thus meets the objection respecting certain failures.

Having disposed of this point, we come to the per cent. of gain which home manufactures give to business activity; to industrial interests; to home markets; to the value of real estate; to the inducements to immigration; and to a saving of imports, or making the balance of trade in our favor, communities and States must count this balance, as well as nations in their census.

Respecting business activity, "a quick penny is better than a slow dollar." Merchants that depend on harvests and farmers only can have but a few months of activity per year. But those that supply ever-moving machinery, and bear off its products, find every day full of work, and idleness and vacuity the exception. Their activity is the spring of hundreds dependent on them. The hum of wheels stirs the throng upon the streets. The throb of central power sends pulsations through every fibre of the social system.

Witness the manufacturing centers of New England, and the swift trains that run hourly to and from Boston, their great business emporium, and the trains that permeate also all the cities and larger towns of the country. Stop those wheels and tens of thousands would become idlers, and, perhaps, paupers. Close those factories, and hundreds of huge warehouses and lofty stores would be closed, and their employes turned off. Set them in motion, and every mind, and hand, and foot become active. The per cent. of gain from this fact alone to every man and every family is appreciable in every direction. It is a positive premium upon every dollar of investment in the manufactory. That premium must be counted by him who seeks fair returns for his money.

DAY MORNING, APRIL 16, 1875.

CITY [illegible]

PREVENTING HYDRANTS FROM FREEZING.—Last winter the chief engineer experienced considerable difficulty in preventing the fire hydrants from freezing during the cold weather. The following paragraph in relation to a proposed plan to prevent hydrants from freezing during the coldest weather, we clip from the Fire Record:

Mr. John G. Culyer, the chief engineer of Prospect park, Brooklyn, proposes a plan for preventing the freezing of hydrants, the main features of which are, that they shall be placed below the surface of the sidewalk, and be enclosed by either a brick chamber or cast iron cylinder, so that they can be easily gotten at. In the bottom of the chamber a pipe is to be placed leading to the sewer, by which all the water remaining in the hydrant after it is closed will be immediately conveyed away, and as all the water is admitted to the hydrant by a valve four feet six inches below the surface there will be no chance for the water to freeze at that point. But as all hydrants are provided with a self-acting valve, by which the water above the main valve is removed after the hydrant is closed, it sometime happens that this valve does not act, and this arrangement is intended to remedy this defect. Around the upper portion of the hydrant it is proposed to place a perforated ring of gas pipe, connected with the gas main, so that in cold weather the gas may be lighted and the hydrants surrounded by a circle of fire that will remove any accumulation of ice and keep them in condition for immediate use. It is held that the ordinary supervision of the firemen will serve to keep the hydrants so constructed in the most efficient condition for use at the smallest cost.

THE SPELLING MANIA.—Now that the orthographical tidal wave has reached these far-off western shores, we think the following paragraph from an exchange exceedingly apropos: The spelling mania must have a name, and a classical one, too. How will this do? It has the merit of conciseness, at all events: "Cacoëther literas in syllabas calligendi." It is terrible, this mania! You are stopped upon the street and invited to spell pedler, or pedlar, or peddler, or some other word. Your wife wakes up in the middle of the night to spell 'sarcophagus;' your children hasten to the breakfast-table to ask you to spell 'corymb,' and devote all their spare time to the dictionary; your eldest boy comes home late at night in a weeping mood, and explains it thus: 'I went to see Mary [his sweetheart] this evening; she met me at the door with 'Spell erysipelas, Tom!' I spelled it with two 'i's' and no 'y,' and she said, 'Sir, our engagement is at an end; I cannot love any more a bad speller.' Her father, on being appealed to, says 'Give Tom one more trial. Spell consanguineous, sir,' and spelled it with four 'n's' and two 'i's,' and he bade me leave the house and never hope to be his son-in-law." This spell of weather is a bad weather of spell surely.

AN ORTHOGRAPHICAL CURIOSITY.—Below we publish a love missive which was handed to us. It was received by a damsel in this city, and the writer resides down on the lordly Columbia. Persons intending to participate in the spelling contest this evening will take particular heed to the spelling and be profited (?) thereby. The letter reads as follows: "DEAR SPRAIN: I hav a few Lazy moments now an I don't think I cold Spend them eny Beter than To write a few lines to you. But it is so awful hot that I dont Feel much like writing. Becase it reminds me of 1860 an old times an that is What I like for to think of. I can't forget this Happy Hourz I spent fishing in the Rambling Crick and got a Bight! Nor that Hukle bary trip either. I hav ben awful homesick for you! I herd a boy say he fell deply in lov with you but Thaint got much of a show neither! I forget that Poetry but I cant think of it now. I am thinking of taking a school [?] about 2 mile frome here when I finish school. Good By the shure, an write soon. Hear is a sweet kis."

FATAL ACCIDENT.—We learn by a private letter from Independence, Polk county, that a fatal accident occurred a few days since about seven miles from that place, on the Luckiamute. A young man, named David Collins, started to take several horses to the stream to water them. He was riding one and leading the rest. Just how the accident occurred will probably never be known, as the young man was alone. But it is supposed, from every appearance, that the animal on which Collins was seated threw him while in the stream and kicked him, rendering him insensible, and before recovering he was drowned. The body was discovered very soon after the accident by the brother of the deceased, who came down to the water. It was still warm, but life was extinct. The water was not more than four feet deep at the place. Several bruises were found on the body, evidently produced by horses' hoofs.

PROMINENT IRISHMEN TO THE FRONT.—Mr. Thomas H. Cann, of Salem, has recently received the following letter from the editor of the Irish World, published in New York. The letter says: "THOMAS H. CANN—Dear Sir: The Irish World is about publishing a list of all the prominent Irishmen and sons of Irishmen in the United States, and would take it as a favor if you would forward to this office a brief biographical sketch of yourself, giving, at the same time, the name of the county in Ireland from which you or your parents came."

HAS NO AUTHORITY TO PREACH.—Rev. Wm. Roberts, presiding elder of Portland district, writes the following card, which appears in the P. C. Advocate: "It becomes necessary for me to say that a certain B. A. Hill, who has been about the Chehalem mountains for some time, and who has claimed to be a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and to preach sometimes, has no authority from said church to do any such thing; and, further, that charges of a very serious nature are pending against him."

SOCIABLE.—This evening a sociable will be held at Portland Academy by the students, as is usual at the commencement of a new quarter. Ice cream and other delicacies will be abundantly provided. Literary and musical exercises will serve to make the time pass agreeably to visitors. These gatherings are always well attended, and the persons in charge intend to make this as successful as former ones.

FROM UMATILLA.—A note from Umatilla, under date of April 12th, says: "The weather is fine here at present. Stock is improving. The members of Overland Lodge No. 23, I. O. O. F. propose to celebrate the 57th anniversary of the introduction of Odd Fellowship into the United States, by giving a grand ball on the evening of the 26th inst., at Umatilla.

NEW MUSIC.—We have received from Gray's music store the following choice selections just issued: "Maiden's Lament;" "Sylphiden;" "Anna Lieder Waltz;" "A Mother's Dream"—words by George Cooper, music by Harrison Millard; "Ruby Lancers"—composed by Mr. Charles Bray, and dedicated to the Portland Progress Club.

Attention is called to the card of Pearson & Strand, house and sign painters, who have just opened at 49 Front street. Mr. Pearson announces the agency of the Hamburg line of steamers.

Selling does not propose to give them away, but he is willing to sacrifice a great deal and accept a trifling margin on the sale of Parasols, an immense stock of which he has now in store of every quality. Ladies in need of sun shades will take advantage of this opportunity and buy when they are to be had very cheap. See Selling's advertisement.

On Tuesday last a vessel was seen off the bar. Immediately the tug started out. Before reaching the cape the fog settled down so thick that the vessel was hidden from view. Since then nothing more has been seen of her.

The next lecture of the course delivered under the auspices of the Catholic social union, will be delivered on the last Friday in this month, by the Rev. L. Schram. Subject—The Indian Policy of the United States Government.

We understand that a couple of sharpers have enveigled a number of recently arrived immigrants by selling them worthless watches for a nominal sum. Such conduct is reprehensible, and the scoundrels, if discovered, should be severely punished.

AMUSEMENTS.

Considering the extreme warm weather the theater was well patronized last evening. "Hard Struggle" and "Kathleen Mavourneen" were offered for the second time. As the public are familiar with both plays, a passing notice will suffice. Both pieces were rendered quite acceptably, and if not winning enthusiastic applause at least afforded the audience satisfaction and pleasure.

This evening an attractive bill is promised; being neither more nor less that Boucicault's sensational drama, in five acts, entitled the "Octoroon." How well this familiar but quite popular drama will be produced the public can form their own conclusion, by considering first, the strength of the present company, and second, the distribution of the cast: James A. Herne will personate "Salem Scudder;" J. H. Leroy, "Uncle Pete;" Thos. Whiffen, "Wahno-te;" F. Cleaves, "George Peyton;" R. Fulford, "Jacob McClosky;" R. C. White, "Squire Sunnyside;" J. C. Drake, "Captain Ratts;" George Osborn, "Colonel Poindexter;" Miss Blanche Galton, "Dora Sunnyside;" Mrs. Fulford, "Zoe;" Mrs. Osborn, "Mrs. Peyton;" Miss Rillie Deaves, "Paul." From the strength of the company we are assured that the piece will be rendered capitally. Mr. R. C. White, the scenic painter, has been preparing new scenery expressly for the play, and there will be no deficiency in the mounting of the piece, nor of properties and mechanical effects. Last matinee performance to-morrow afternoon.

During the warm weather there is nothing better nor more cooling than a drink of soda water from Gibson & Co.'s "Arctic."

Two Germans passed the Postoffice near,
And at each other they looked so queer,
That one of them turned right-about,
And to the other like this did shout:
"Hans! why all dese unhappiness,
Was known what made dem clothes fit best?
Come! Bird's Emporium was not far,
And smoke mit me a fine Cigar."

This poem is not the best in the world, but is good enough to express the extreme happiness felt while smoking a Cigar from BIRD'S EMPORIUM, First street, bet. Morrison and Alder.

M. ROSENBLATT, Clothier, has just returned from San Francisco with a large Stock of Spring Goods—particularly Boys' and Youths' Clothing, at lower rates than ever. Call and see before purchasing. The store is No. 79 Front street.

PERSONAL.

Ex-Gov. A. C. Gibbs returned home by the Ajax last evening, having enjoyed a pleasant visit to San Francisco.

Rev. P. Hylebos, of St. Francis Xavier's mission, Cowlitz, returned by the steamer from a trip to California for the benefit of his health.

Rev. J. H. Adams has consented to go into the service of the American Bible Society, and will go east of the Cascade mountains to enter upon his labors.

Judge R. S. Green was in the city a few days since en route to Vancouver to hold court. He was accompanied by J. B. Allen, Esq., prosecuting attorney of the district.

Mr. W. P. Curtis, of Forest Grove, has been spending a few days in our city. Mr. Curtis has done a great deal to make known abroad the many advantages of Oregon soil and climate.

W. S. Ladd and family are expected to leave San Francisco for Portland on Saturday. Their many friends will be glad to see them after their absence of nearly a year from our midst.

Hon. Joseph S. Smith is still in California, whither he went last fall to benefit his failing health. We much regret to state that since the first of April his health has been very poor, and that but little hope is entertained of his ultimate recovery.

A late San Francisco exchange says: "Gen. Geo. Crook, U. S. A., who arrived here from Arizona on Wednesday night, is stopping at the Lick House. Tuesday next the General will leave for Omaha to take command of the department of the Platte. During the past four years, as commander of the military department of Arizona, he has been engaged in reducing the Apaches to submission. He is accompanied by Capt. Nickerson and Lieut. Bourke, both of whom were prominently identified with the General during the Arizona campaign."

MILITARY NOTES.

The following orders have been issued:

For reasons satisfactory to the department commander, the unexecuted portion of the sentence (as mitigated) in the case of private Wm. Fitzgerald, Company H, 21st Infantry, (general orders No. 6, current series), is remitted.

Major and Paymaster James P. Canby will pay the troops, to include the muster of Feb. 28, 1875, at Fort Boise; and returning via Forts Walla Walla and Lapwai will pay the troops at those posts, to include the muster of April 30, 1875.

1st Lieutenant Joseph A. Sladen, 14th Infantry, aide-de-camp, will proceed to Fort Walla Walla—to arrive there on or before the 20th inst.—and report in person to the department commander to accompany him to Fort Colville and return to this city.

The public exigencies requiring the immediate delivery of the article, the chief commissary of subsistence is authorized to purchase, in open market, at lowest obtainable rates, 200 fire-brick, for shipment to Fort Townsend, to be used in building an oven for the bake-house.

Authority is granted the subsistence department at Fort Townsend to purchase 5,500 common brick, at not to exceed $20 coin per thousand, and 5 barrels lime, not to exceed $3 coin per barrel; also to employ a mason and blacksmith—it being impracticable to furnish the requisite labor by the troops—at a cost not to exceed $75 coin to build bake-oven at that post.

The Spring time has come, and with it new goods to our enterprising merchants. The styles are much changed in clothing, and the dull times have worked a change in prices too, so much so, that persons with limited means can invest liberally. J. KOHN, opposite National Bank, is among the first to introduce the latest styles from the Eastern markets. He has an immense stock which is well worth looking through. Call and see the new stock.

The observing man must have noted a change in the establishment of BECK & WALDMAN. The last steamer brought them quite a large invoice of Spring Styles, which they are having displayed for the inspection of their numerous customers. They will continue to offer the public the best bargains. As usual the stock of Youth's clothing is varied and parents may find many new things that will be sure to please. Drop in this evening.

HEREDITARY CONSUMPTION BAFFLED.

Because there is an inherited tendency to consumption it does not follow that the heir to this sad legacy must die of the disease. The early symptoms of danger are marked—a cough being the first and most prominent. Meet this first indication of peril with HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, and in three days it will have vanished, and with it all cause of apprehension. No matter how delicate the lungs may be, or how strong the predisposition to consumption, a speedy cure is absolutely certain.

PIKE'S TOOTH-ACHE DROPS—Cure in one minute.

It is an Established Fact, that Consumption can be cured; but it is far better to prevent the cruel disease from fastening itself on the system, by the timely use of a remedy like DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. This standard preparation will speedily cure a cough or cold, and even Consumption often yields to its great power.

There is no excuse for those who drag their disordered bodies into our company, when a few doses of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA would cleanse their murky blood and restore their health and vigor. Ye muddy victims of billious disease have some regard for your neighbors, if not for yourselves.

IMPORTANT.—Indorsed by the Medical profession. DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS cures Coughs, Colds, Consumption, and all diseases of the Throat and Chest. DR. TOWNSLEY'S TOOTHACHE ANODYNE cures in one MINUTE.

A Tonic of Rare Merit.

There are many tonics, but few indeed which produce any other effect than artificial stimulation of the appetite. This, so far from being a benefit, is a positive detriment, if the digestive organs are weak, because it induces the patient to eat more than the semi-paralyzed stomach can act upon, and thus aggravates indigestion. There is, however, a tonic which possesses the rare merit of imparting both vigor and regularity to the operations of nutrition. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters provoke a wholesome appetite, because they enable the stomach to dispose of what it receives with such healthful rapidity that at the proper time for meals it is not torpid from indigested matter, but craves its timely sustenance. It is the very fact that it facilitates digestion that renders the national stomachic such a powerful coadjutor of nature in instituting those recuperative processes which result in the recovery of the general health. Uninterrupted, vigorous action of the physical machinery inevitably results from the use of this supreme invigorant and alterative.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

RELIGIOUS, LOCAL, PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

[From the P. C. Advocate.]

The Ladies' Prayer League of this city will hold another of their pleasing and profitable temperance meetings to-morrow (Friday) evening in the First Baptist church, corner of Fourth and Alder streets. The exercises will be varied, and everything will be done that can be done to make the meeting a grand success.

The Sewing Circle and Pastor's Aid Society connected with the Taylor street M. E. church held a very pleasant session yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. William Connell. The attendance was very good and the reports of visiting committees quite encouraging. The next session will be held in two weeks from this date at the residence of Mrs. J. Dillon, corner of West Park and Columbia streets.

The administration of the Lord's Supper announced for next Sabbath in the Evangelical Lutheran church of East Portland, will be postponed until the following Sabbath. The usual services next Sabbath evening in the basement of the First Presbyterian church. Rev. A. E. Fridrichsen will officiate. On Monday evening, April 19th, the annual business meeting will be held at the same place. A full attendance is desired.

[From the Sentinel.]

Mass will be celebrated at the cathedral every day during the summer months, at 6, 6½ and 7 o'clock, instead of 6, 7 and 7½, as we stated last week.

The annual spiritual retreat for the Rev. clergy came to a close last Tuesday evening, after which the several Fathers departed to their distant missions.

Catholics residing in the vicinity of Milwaukie will bear in mind that the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass will be celebrated in St. John's church, on next Sunday, at 10 o'clock. Rev. L. Verhaag will officiate.

The citizens of Baker City have generously subscribed towards the erection of a large building to be used by the Sisters of the Most Holy Names as a boarding and day school for young ladies. The building is well advanced toward completion, and school will be in operation during next fall.

A PRECOCIOUS PAIR.—New York, March 28. Matthew Mansfield and Nettie Gale, both members of the graduating class of Public School No. 2, in Yonkers, went to New York together last September, on the occasion of the reception of the Grand Lodge of the Sons of Temperance in the Academy of Music. On their return they declared that they had been married while in New York, and the young lady said she had burned the certificate of marriage. On account of the equivocal position in which she was placed, Mr. Gale insisted that the marriage ceremony between the parties should be performed by the Rev. Lewis Modge, of the Second Presbyterian Church, in the presence of witnesses. This ceremony was performed on the 5th of March. The young husband is the son of Mr. M. D. Mansfield, a confectioner on Broadway, Yonkers, and is only sixteen years of age; and the bride, who is only fourteen years of age, is a daughter of Mr. Ebert Gale, a carpenter.

The Russian Invalide states that England has supplied 60,000 rifles to the East Turcoman tribes.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Rachel Miller, wife of George Miller, who died March 15, 1875, at Gervais, at the age of 33 years and 7 months, was born in Henderson county, Illinois. She was a daughter of J. W. Kendall, was married in Linn county, Oregon, November 8, 1858, and was at the time of her death the mother of six children, five of whom are living with their father. Deceased was a member of the Missionary Baptist church, and was universally respected and beloved as a Christian member. The whole community, with the church and family, will long mourn their loss. But truly their loss was her gain, for she left the strongest evidence that she died in the triumphs of redeeming love. Truly, "blessed are the dead that die in the Lord; for they shall rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

To Jesus, the crown of my hope,
My soul is in haste to be gone
O bear me, ye cherubim, up
And waft me away to His throne.

My Savior, whom absent I love
Whom, not having seen, I adore,
Whose name is exalted above
All glory, dominion and power.

Dissolve Thou these bonds that detain
My soul from her portion in Thee;
Oh! strike off this adament chain,
And make me eternally free.

Gervais, April 12, 1875. W. B. MAGERS.

THE LESSON.

[A beautiful answer was given by a little Scotch girl. When her class in school was examined, she replied to the question, "What is patience?" "Wait a wee, an' dinna weary."]

A village school-room—this the scene—
Aglow with a slant sun cheery;
The dominie there, of youthful mien,
With the sun of his spirit sharp and keen,
And a class of girls in serried row,
Some taller, and some of stature low,
And some, like the morning sun, afire
To reach the summit of brave desire;
And, as aye, some unco' dreary.
[illegible] teach, an' yo[illegible]
She stupid the while I query—
Nae vision for ocht but vanity;
With thundering tap the dominie
Out-blurted, chafed by a listless girl
Whose only care seemed to smooth and twirl
Her apron streamers, "Wilt thou lass
Mak' answer to a' this glaikit class?"
The dominie sighed aweary.
"Oh, ay," said a little one, "I can tell."
"Weel, out wi't, then, my dearie"—
And the frown from the master's forehead fell,
For the sweetest girl in the school was Nell—
"I want ye to show me the meaning plain
O' patience; ain' ow'r an' ow'r again
I've put it this day!" Then the little maid,
With a roguish twinkle, soberly said:
"Wait a wee, an' dinna weary."

A BEAR-CATCHING GOVERNOR.

HOW THE PRESENT EXECUTIVE OF CALIFORNIA ONCE LASSOED A GRIZZLY.

[From the San Francisco Alta.]

An enthusiastic correspondent gives the subjoined description of an encounter with a grizzly bear, in which California's new Governor (Pacheco) figured prominently:

Governor Pacheco has, among his accomplishments—and they are many—one possessed, we believe, by no other Governor in the United States. He can lasso, and get away with a wild grizzly bear; and we saw him do it in May, 1852, on the Rancho de los Osos (Bear Ranch) in San Luis Obispo, then the residence of Governor Pacheco's mother. Away up in the mountains, among the wild oats, the grizzlies take their morning naps, after their nightly prowling about in search of any stray calf, pig, or other small game. Early one morning the enormous print of a grizzly's foot was seen in the earth close by the dwelling of the Governor's mother, and in a few moments Romualdo and two or three others were in the saddle and off for the mountains. When the tall wild oats, half way up the mountain, were reached, the party had not ridden more than two minutes among the tall, dry wisps when the horses suddenly started, snorting loudly, and, instantly, a huge grizzly stood erect, with a terrific presence, high above the dry, wild oats. He looked just like a gigantic negro, with shaggy fur overcoat, his eyes glistening fiercely, his cruel teeth and red mouth unpleasantly conspicuous. Each man and every horse for the instant seemed petrified—as if, while every nerve and every muscle and wary sense was at its utmost tendency, they had suddenly looked upon the Medusa. In a second's time Pacheco spurred forward, swinging his lasso. The bear commenced sparring warily, and few professional boxers can fend off as these creatures will. But Pacheco's lasso shot out like an arrow, and clasped about the huge fore-foot, when the horse (who saw every movement, and was just as wide-awake as Pacheco) sprang the other way, and the lasso being fast to the pummel, the bear was instantly thrown to the ground, when two other men, quick as lightning, had thrown their lassos, and caught the hind-feet; then another rider caught the loose fore-foot, and the four horses took their positions like cavalry animals trained by some noiseless signal, and slowly marched down the mountain's side, two horses in the van and two in the rear, dragging Ursa Major quietly down the grassy descent, the rear horses keeping just taut-line enough to prevent the bear from getting any use of his terrible hind claws. Nahl has painted some of these California lassoing scenes, that have been as near justice to such exciting tableaux as could be done by the painter's art, but nothing could portray the intensity of excitement and action brought forth at such a moment. Pacheco was, at that time, twenty-one years old, and the handsomest man we ever looked upon.

"I guess the panther in the wilderness was not more fair than he."

When he first realized the sudden presence of the terrible enemy, and stood erect in his stirrups, his face gleaming with the glory of youth, fearlessness, and excitement—his great black eyes sparkling, his white teeth tightly pressed upon his nether lip, perfectly still for a second, he was the most glorious object in nature. In no longer time than the sight of this could be just taken in, he sprang forward, his long dark hair tossed wildly for a moment, and then he had captured the bear, as related.

The captors slowly took their prisoner down to the house, where a long, heavy piece of timber lay upon the grass. Fastening the bear's hind feet to the timber with the strong lassos, and the fore feet to a strong, deep-driven stake, they stepped away to a respectful distance, their eyes upon the ferocious creature, and their hands upon their saddle-pummels. We walked up close to the bear to take a careful look at him. All cried out "Cuidado!" "Take care."

"Why, he's all secure," we said. "Yes, but look out."

"You don't think he could get loose?" "Perhaps not, but you'd better keep away!" And we did.

The bear lay with his head between his huge paws, covering his eyes, save occasionally when he would furtively lift his eyes, like a sulky child, to look at his captors; then covering his eyes again, remain a moment and steal another look. Soon he gave heavy sighs, and some one said, "He is dying!" We expressed surprise to learn that the bear was wounded.

"He is not wounded," they replied, "but his heart breaks—he dies of rage." And in a few moments he had breathed his last, and was dragged away some distance from the house, and left.

Pacheco pointed to the sky. We looked, and saw a hundred carrion crows, whose watchful eyes had seen the feast long before it was half way down the mountain side; and before we were a hundred yards from the dead bear, its body was completely hidden by the sable, flapping wings of the hungry undertakers.

MOTHER GOOSE IDEALIZED.—Mr. Tyler, in his "Primitive Culture," thus applies to the children's "Song of Sixpence" the law of the interpretation of myths: Obviously the four and twenty blackbirds are four and twenty hours, and the pie that holds them is the underlying earth, covered with the overarching sky; how true a touch of nature it is, that when the pie is opened—that is when day breaks—the birds begin to sing! The king is the sun, and his counting out his money is pouring out the sunshine, the golden shower of Danæ. The queen is the moon, and her transparent honey the moonlight. The maid is the rosy-figured dawn, who rises before the sun, her master, and hangs out the clouds, his clothes, across the sky. The particular blackbird who so tragically ends the tale by snipping off her nose is the hour of sunrise.

In anticipation of a more active condition of trade than has yet been experienced, most merchants in this city have made more extensive preparations than usual to meet the anticipated demand, and more goods are perhaps now in this market than have ever been at any one time previously. Of course, many of these very large importations have been paid for, and though the value of the capital is here, and the country really no poorer than it was two months ago, the want of the actual circulating medium is now being as pressingly felt as it will be at any time during the year. The distribution of the merchandise, to which the money has gone to pay for, will be followed by a restoration of an equilibrium in financial affairs and a consequent easier business feeling generally. After the long dull spell which we have undergone, it would not be expected that prosperity would come in an hour or a day, but biding our time we look for it with confidence, knowing that though our growth may be slow and our prosperity come gradually, a country with the resources of ours, and a people of ordinary enterprise and intelligence, are the two great requisites to a populous and wealthy State.

Trade matters to-day have taken on no new features, a fair amount of activity being noticed in some lines of dry goods and groceries, and also a fair inquiry for agricultural implements. With the latter the market is now finely stocked with a splendid assortment of the latest and most approved patterns, and consignments are coming forward weekly. The boot and shoe trade exhibits some animation, and though transaction, taken singly, are not large, the aggregate volume of trade shows no particularly discouraging features.

Shipping Intelligence.

The steamship Ajax, hence for San Francisco, will sail at 6 P. M. to-morrow with freight and passengers.

The steamer California is announced to sail for Sitka, Fort Wrangell, etc., on or about May 1st.

The new iron ship Aglaia, 840 tons register, has been chartered at Liverpool by R. C. Janion & Co., and will sail in May for Portland, via Honolulu with a cargo for the two ports.

Corn—Small yellow, $1 50; large yellow, slightly damaged, $1 45@1 50.

Hay—Volunteer wheat, $16; wild oat, $10.

Potatoes—Bay, $2 25; Humboldt, from warehouse, $2 30@2 35.

Wool—Spring clip, 16@23c; inside price for Southern burry, and fair spring fleeces, little seedy, 21c.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—During the entire week under review transactions have been limited to small lots, mostly purchased by millers to fill orders or supply the local trade. Exporters are operating very slowly, and holders, except farmers, are scarce, while the latter are too busily engaged with their spring work to spend much time in investigation of the markets. San Francisco and Liverpool advices of the latest dates obtainable denote a firm market at the former place and an inactive one at the latter. The best quotations to be heard in our home market is $1 40 per cental, though rumors are to the effect that a few parties have paid a trifling advance on these figures. There is a fair demand and but few lots offering. The prospects for the new crop are improving.

FLOUR—There is a full demand for the local trade, and shipments to San Francisco continue tolerably active. The stocks on hand are not large. Should one or two small vessels now about due conclude to take cargoes from this market—most of the mills in the interior having closed temporarily—the quantity here would become smaller than usual. At present quotations are firm at $4 50 per bbl for standard extras, $4@4 25 for good outside and country brands, and $3 50@3 75 for superfine.

OATS—In this cereal there has been no important change since last week, the quotations being as then—50@55c per bushel, including sacks. Receipts are only moderate as to volume.

BARLEY—There is a home demand for all offering, which in quantity is small, and a scarcity of choice is likely to occur before the harvest. We quote nominally at $1 25 per cwt. for common, and $1 35@1 40 for extra quality.

MILL FEED—There are but small supplies of any kind in the market and no shipments are made of any volume. The quotations given last week still rule.

HAY—There is a fair supply, but prices are well sustained for the season at $10@12 per ton for timothy and fine wild, but coarse wild is dull at $7@7 50.

POTATOES—There has been a brisk demand for shipping purposes and prices have been still at 75 cents per bushel, at which a good article still rules, but transactions show less activity.

ONIONS—But little doing at present; quotable at 1a1½ cents per lb sacked.

RIPE APPLES—For unassorted common lots from wagons quotations can hardly be given, while choice neatly packed are ruling at 70@80 cents per box.
